THE BARBER'S OPINION.

"Some people think 'tis only made
For cleansing goods of heavy grade,
For washing down the walls or stairs,
The bureau, tables and the chairs;
But folks do well to change their mind;
'Tis not to things like these confined,
And not alone the kitchen maid
And laundress prize its friendly aid;
I find it just the nicest thing
For toilet use and barbering.
The slightest touches will suffice
To make a foamy lather rise,
That holds the beard till smoothly laid,
However dull may be the blade.
In short, the tale is ever new
That tells what IVORY SOAP will do."

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

THE FIRST GRANDCHILD.

"Grandmother!" called the farmer, and there came
Out from the vine wreathed porch a blushing dame,
Surprised and eager at the strange new name.

The clock within rang forth the chime for eight.
"A message! Read it—quick—how can you wait?"
Her husband, smiling, leaned upon the gate.

At arm's length holding in his trembling hand
The crisp white sheet, while he the writing scanned,
Then read once more, with voice almost unmanned:

"Thy granddaughter salutes thee, Baby Bell,
Mother and child, thank God, are doing well!"
A moment's silence on the proud twain fell.

She broke it soon. "Grandfather, I congrat"—
"What, me?" the good man cried, lifting his hat—
"Grandfather"—me? I hadn't thought of that."
—Annie A. Preston.

LOVE VS. DISCIPLINE.

It was evening in the gloomy old fashioned kitchen of Farmer Grey. The green paper curtains, covered with pictures of impossible scenery and strange grotesque figures, were lowered, shutting out the white moonlight as it lay upon the snow covered fields like glittering crystals.

Great logs of oak and cedar filled the wide fireplace, casting a ruddy, cheerful glow around the room; an Angora cat lay basking in the bright firelight, while upon the opposite side of the hearth, stretched at full length, lay a great Newfoundland dog; the yellow painted floor was clean as hands could make it, and altogether the room presented a scene of rural comfort not to be despised.

The farmer sat in his easy chair, deep in meditation, with his eyes fastened upon the fire, while the busy housewife, with deft fingers, plied the knitting needles, and glanced occasionally at the couple seated at the table busy with their books. It was their daughter and the district school teacher.

Faith Grey was an only child, and from the time when she first began to talk had ruled her loving subjects in the little kingdom of home with absolute sway. She was now 17 years of age, with laughing brown eyes and waving auburn hair, that rippled and shone with a touch of gold in its soft meshes when she faced the sun. Her complexion was fair and pure as an apple blossom. Her dress was a simple brown merino, with a plain white collar fastened at the throat by a blue ribbon, while streamers of the same azure hue confined the meshes of waving hair. She was tall and slender, with a supple, willowy grace perceptible in every movement of her graceful form.

Her companion was apparently 25 years of age, with a broad white brow and dark hair, which clustered in little ringlets about his forehead; his eyes were black and penetrating; the grave, firm mouth betokened indomitable will and strength of character; his face was smooth, and his large, well made form was arrayed in a suit of plain black. He was college educated, and while waiting for a situation had learned that he could have the winter school in this district to teach, and being poor, had accepted it rather than remain idle until a more eligible one presented itself. He was far from despising small beginnings.

He well knew that the school bore no enviable reputation, for by report it was known far and near. Only the winter before the scholars had chosen to give the teacher a seat in a snowdrift, and then entering the school room had held high carnival, laughing and jeering at him as he tried in vain to enter, and in despair he had turned his back upon the school and the town. He well knew that it was no light task which he had undertaken, but only a tighter closing of the firm lips was visible as he accepted the trust, and silently vowed to conquer or die. It was a school of fifty scholars, ranging from four to twenty years of age. A mixed assembly, some good, some bad, and some neither the one nor the other, but ready to join the strongest party.

He was obliged to board around, and as he was exceedingly particular and fastidious in all his personal affairs, some encounters which he was obliged to make were laughable in the extreme. He chose the place farthest from his school for his first boarding place, and as he took his seat at the supper table he glanced appalled at the view which the board presented. The dishes were cracked and grimy, and the supper was composed of a dish of potatoes, familiarly known among the country people as the "long Johns." Gigantic in size, they lay black and heavy upon the dirty plate, flanked by a deep yellow dish, two-thirds full of pork fat, while slices of the pork, fried to a cinder, floated upon the top. A plate of bread, with a leaden strip at the bottom of each slice, and a small piece of butter composed of alternate stripes of white and yellow, completed the viands.

He crushed down the rising feeling of disgust and made no sign, even when the young son, a boy of 10 years of age, seized one of the potatoes in his dirty, unwashed hands, and, squeezing it, exclaimed: "Marm, this 'ere 'tater ain't done," and laying it down coolly repeated the operation with the rest.

This was a sample of the meals which he was compelled to partake of while he stayed at his first boarding place, but he was more fortunate in his next selection. It was at Farmer Grey's, and Mrs. Grey was a noted housewife. Faith was one of his hardest pupils to manage. Never doing any mischief which he could trace directly to her, yet, by some unaccountable influence, he was sure that she induced the rest to act in direct defiance of his authority, and when detected her own face would be as demure and innocent looking as that of a kitten.

She was a ready and apt scholar, and seemed really delighted with the opportunities of learning which the talented young master placed within the reach of all. He was possessed of a vast fund of general information, and he gave to them without measure and without stint. He was kind and gentle, but in very truth they found him master—all but Faith.

As the days lengthened into weeks an unquiet spirit appeared to enter into the girl, and she seemed almost boldly defiant. With exceeding patience and gentleness the master bore with all her freaks, and although sorely tried he endeavored, by gentle, winning kindness, to bring her to see the great wrong she was doing herself and him. But it was of no avail: the more he tried the more he might try, and the dancing brown eyes shot forth angry sparks as at last he passed her most daring pranks by in absolute silence.

However, the crisis came at last. At the noon recess one of the oldest scholars, a youth of 19, had tried to steal her handkerchief in fun; it was a dainty affair, made of lace and muslin, a present from her cousin in the city. Faith had resolutely declined all such advances, but in the afternoon she reached across the aisle and laid it upon the open leaves of the book where he was studying. With a graceful low he acknowledged the gift, and raised it to his lips, when lo! a tiny dead mouse dropped from its folds, and a universal giggle ran through the room. In desperation the master called them to order, and there was a sharp ring, as of pain, in the grave, stern tones which said, "Faith Grey can stop after school to-night." That was all, and, without casting a look in the direction of the young girl, the business of the day went on as usual, but each and all understood that trifling was at an end, and even Faith's rosy cheeks paled a little as she glanced shyly at the stern, quiet face.

It had been a hard day for the young master, and it was no wonder if his patience was exhausted. In the morning one of his largest scholars, a half witted Frenchman, had entered late and immediately commenced to laugh, and all the information that could be elicited from him was that he guessed "the two-year-old would get full by and by," and again his fat sides would shake with laughter. He was a great, overgrown fellow of sixteen, who worked for his board at a farm about a mile from school, and at noon his employer presented himself at the schoolhouse, and in loud, angry tones ordered him never to darken his doors again.

It appeared that the spring where the cattle had been in the habit of drinking was formed by lowering a barrel into the ground, and all around it was very slippery with ice, and as the clown had driven them to drink, the "two-year-old" had slipped and fallen in head first, and being unable to get out alone, the Frenchman had left it to "get full" while he went to school. When found by the farmer the animal was drowned. Although the schoolmaster could not blame the farmer for his indignation, yet the circumstance annoyed him exceedingly; and if one might be allowed to judge by the look of determination on his white, stern face, Faith was likely to feel the full force of his authority, and even her stout heart quailed a little as the shadows lengthened and the day drew near its close.

The last lesson had been recited, the last class had stood up to spell; the evening hymn had been sung, and at last school had closed, the scholars filing out of the house in good order and with a strange quietness and dispatch, wrapping about them their shawls, hoods and comforters. Faith, with the roses all gone from her dimpled cheeks, was sitting at her desk, white and still. For a few moments, which seemed like an eternity to her, the master sat at his desk with head bowed upon his hands. The short winter's day was drawing to a close, and one solitary sunbeam, red as blood, streamed through the window and lay across the desk exactly in front of her, and to the day of her death Faith will carry a vivid inward picture of that little schoolroom, for every article which it contained was indelibly impressed upon her mind in those few moments.

At last the master raised his head and in low tones said:

"Miss Faith, you may come here."

At the sound of his voice the blood rushed back to the cheek which had been so pale but a moment ago, and her courage revived. She arose and with firm step walked across the room and stood before him, and as their eyes met she returned his gaze unflinchingly. His was a sad, beseeching look, as though he would urge her to beg his forgiveness. Hers was a mixture of fun and anger combined, but certainly they showed no signs of sorrow. As he arose to his feet his huge form towered like a giant above her, and reaching over his desk he grasped his ferule.

"Hold out your hand!"

And more in sorrow than in anger he looked to see if his command was obeyed.

The words were jerked forth as though they caused the speaker untold pain. Faith obeyed, although the white lids covered the brown eyes and the long eyelashes swept over cheeks as white as the snow outside. She had never received a blow in her life, and she shivered as the tips of her slender fingers were firmly grasped, and one short, sharp, stinging blow descended upon the white palm, leaving a crimson mark that curiously reminded her of the blood red sunbeam as it lay across the desk. The ferule was raised for another blow when again their eyes met, but from the brown ones the anger was gone, and they were full of tears and mute pleadings, and with a dull thud the ferule dropped to the floor, and the girl was clasped to his heart in a wild, passionate embrace.

* * * * * * * *

In after years, when she was the loved and honored wife of the statesman who began his career as a district schoolteacher, Faith was wont to say that the keeping up of appearances so that others might not know what had occurred was the hardest lesson she had ever learned. It was impossible to become the docile pupil which she now longed to be without exciting suspicion, and for eight weeks she acted her part in a manner worthy of the most finished actress; and to this day it is an unsettled question between them as to which conquered.—True Flag.

Concentric cables are claimed as the best, on the theoretical grounds for the elimination of induced currents, as their reaction upon one another is necessarily strongest in the apis of the current.

A Sure Sign.

Merritt—I'm afraid Cora's love for me isn't just what it might be.

Giles—That's nonsense, old boy. She fairly idolizes you.

Merritt—I don't know so much about that. I gave her a costly present last night, and before she thanked me she ran up stairs to show it to her mother.—Judge.

Altogether Too Natural.

Friend—That sun in your last painting is very natural.

Artist—Yes, altogether too natural.

Friend—Why do you say that?

Artist—Because it dries up the water in that pond so fast that I have to paint new water every three or four days.—Judge.

A FEW STATISTICS.

It is stated that London contains more Roman Catholics than Rome and more Jews than Palestine.

Statistics just published show that there are 2,273 soldiers six feet or over in height in the British army.

Leading statisticians of England assert that more persons annually choke to death while eating in England than are killed on the English railroads.

The production of salt in France is now estimated to be over 650,000 tons, obtained as follows: Salines of Midi, 300,000 tons; salines of the west, 350,000 tons; salines of the east and the Pyrenees, 100,000 tons.

In Australia there are 247,000 more males than females. Including New Zealand and Tasmania, the excess of males over females is 301,949. Women are constantly arriving in the colonies, but the men are always in the majority.

The annual tonnage on the 4,709 miles of navigable rivers and 2,880 miles of canals in France amounts to about 9,000,000 tons. With depressed trade, the 102 miles of the Birmingham canal alone had a traffic, in 1877, of 7,000,000 tons.

According to the statistics of Dr. Fodd, of the Georgia State Medical society, the life expectancy of various countries is as follows: United States, 55 years; England, 52; Russia and Chili, 28; Soudan, 23; France, 45½; Europe, in mediæval times, 20; and Rome in the time of Cæsar, 18.

There are special factories in Paris for making children's watches which employ hundreds of hands. Thirty million are annually produced; in other words, Paris provides every year a toy watch for every child between five and ten in France, Germany, Russia, Great Britain, Italy and Austria.

Bound to Kill Them Somehow.

"Mary, said the sick man, feebly, "those yowling cats annoy me terribly. Can't they be reached by a shot gun or something of that kind?"

"No," replied his wife; "they are on the flat roof of the adjoining house."

"Mary," exclaimed the invalid again, after a pause—and his face grew hard and pitiless—"throw some of these medicines up on the roof!"—Chicago Tribune.

Electrician—So you want a job, do you?

Stranger—Yes, sir. I saw your advertisement, and thought I'd call.

Electrician—What was your last business?

Stranger—I was a street car conductor, but during the strike I lost my place.

Electrician—I'm sorry, my man, but we have no use for non-conductors in our business.—Judge.

MR. AND MRS. BOWSER.

In Which Mrs. Bowser Comes to the Front as Usual.

I had a caller the other afternoon when Mr. Bowser came home, and after she had gone he asked:

"How long was Mrs. Blank here?"

"About half an hour."

"And you talked about fashions, I suppose?"

"Yes, mostly; what should we talk about?"

"Mrs. Browser, did it ever occur to you that there was anything in life beyond millinery and dress goods and dressmakers?"

"How?"

"How! Why select some subject of sense—art, science, mineralogy, the labor question, or self government—and discuss it with calmness and justice, and learn something worth remembering for half an hour. You women folks might as well have been born with a pumpkin on your shoulders in place of a head."

I made no reply to this, but determined to catch Mr. Bowser in his own trap before the week was out. Fortune favored me. It was only two days before a neighbor called over as he was at work in the back yard, and for two long hours those men sat down on a ladder and discussed the question whether a back gate should open inwards or outwards, and the advantages offered by either situation.

Mr. Bowser contended for the gate opening outwards, and the neighbor for the opposite, and the discussion resulted in Mr. Bowser getting red clear back of the ears and jumping up to exclaim:

"Well, let's drop the subject right here. There can be cranks on alley gates as well as on politics and religion."

"And there can be lunatics outside of the asylums," hotly replied the neighbor.

"Don't call me a lunatic!"

"And don't you call me a crank!"

"Go home and hang your old gate to the moon!"

"I'll hang it according to the rules of common sense, and don't you forget it."

When Mr. Bowser came in to wash his hands I observed:

"Mr. Bowser, did it ever occur to you that there was anything in life beyond hanging a back gate?"

He replied with a "humph!" of disgust.

"Select some subject of sense, Mr. Bowser—art, science, mineralogy, the labor question or self government—and discuss it with calmness and judgment and learn something worth remembering for half an hour?"

He looked around in a desperate, helpless way, and put on his hat and went off without a word in reply. I wasn't going to let him off on that, however. When he came home that evening I had Mrs. Orfendorf over to supper, and as soon as we were seated at the table I queried:

"Doesn't it strike you that Germany's policy on the Samoan question is one of conciliation instead of aggression?"

"It certainly does," she replied, "but there may be a hidden motive behind this seeming submission. Trace the record of the man back as far as you will, and his policy has been either aggression or strategy."

BOTH AMENDMENTS DEFEATED.

The majority in the State against the Prohibition Amendment is 188,149, and the Poll Tax Amendment is lost by a majority of 146,996. It is evident that constitutional amendments are not popular in Pennsylvania. The vote on Prohibition is no defeat for the temperance cause. It simply shows that an overwhelming majority of the people believe that High License enforced is a better way to control the liquor traffic than Prohibition.

Philadelphia gave a majority of 93,750 against Prohibition, and 92,525 in favor of the poll tax amendment.

THE NEW COLLECTOR.

A young man named Thomas J. Penman has been appointed Collector of Internal Revenue for this district. We are informed he is twenty-nine years old, is a Scranton lawyer, and of course was not a soldier, as he was only four years old when the war ended. There were several other applicants for the office, all of whom were veterans, among them being Capt. J. B. Robison of this town.

This is another evidence of the insincerity of the boasted love of the Republican party for the soldier. Capt. Robison fought bravely, and bears upon his person the marks of rebel bullets, but his claim is of no account when presented to a Republican President, and he is cast aside for one who never faced a cannon, but who perhaps may wield a greater political influence in a larger city. What has become of the law that pretends to give the preference to Union soldiers in appointments to civil office?

This action of the administration is on a par with the appointment of a Western postmaster. President Cleveland removed a postmistress who was the widow of a soldier, and Mr. Harrison, then in the Senate, gave vent to his wrathful indignation. When, however, he became President, and the same woman was an applicant for the same place, he ignored her appeal, and appointed a ward heeler to the position. When the President of the United States ignores veteran soldiers and their widows, and the Governor of Pennsylvania vetoes pension bills, it is high time for the loyal press to cry out against these Northern political outrages.

Reply to H. B. Low.

EDITORS COLUMBIAN, DEAR SIRS:

The next time H. B. Low writes a piece for publication, I would advise him to tie a small piece of ice on his head.

He has allowed his temper to gain full sway over common sense and judgment.

When he wrote a reply to Mr. Derr and myself Mr. Low was intoxicated with passion, which is 'ten times worse' than to be drunk on liquor. I think Mr. Derr was very lenient in comparing him to a boa-constrictor. The boa will not back bite a man and is not capable of telling a lie. Because he and Mr. Derr have got into a controversy I see no reason why he should abuse me. He does not contradict my views but vents his spleen on me personally. Of course we may expect such things from such men as it is the true spirit and principle of Prohibition to fight men's characters. Ignorant, though as he is, he knows very well that my argument is based on the Bible and affirmed by the most able preachers in the United States, and it will stand before ten thousand such men as H. B. Low. He is not worthy the contempt of a gentleman, and I as a farmer, and a gentleman will not stoop to argue with any man who will resort to such contemptious means as he has. I write this article not to enter into any controversy with H. B. Low, but to vindicate myself and some preacher who he attacks so malignantly and falsely. He calls me a preacher, an Irishman, and heaps abuse upon me without any cause whatever. He has published as a fact, that which is based, entirely on his own fanatical imagination. He thinks because a man is a farmer, he must necessarily be ignorant, and can know very little about the Bible. What a blessing it is that the "Holy Book" cannot be monopolized by street idlers and fox hunters.

I am not a preacher, nor a member of any church. I am an American by birth, a farmer, and a resident of Columbia county, and any man who says that a preacher wrote or composed the article headed "A Farmer's Religious Views of Prohibition," is entirely mistaken. He has deliberately misrepresented when he quoted the sentence, "The mothers of to-day are responsible for the government of their children in the future." The sentence is this, "The mothers of to-day are responsible for the government of the future." Do you see the point? and is it not true? Who can tell, what little child of to-day will be President of the United States in the future?

I presume Mr. Low judges us all by himself. The difference between his first and last article, proves to all his readers, that it was not the same mind that composed them. The first was a perversion of the truth, and the last was an exposition of Prohibition malice, ignorance, and falsehood. Mr. Low may grow wiser, as he grows older, but it will be by forgetting what he thinks he knows. It is possible that Mr. Low may have an opportunity to prove his slander before a court of justice.

REPLY TO W. C.

I had almost forgotten Mr. W. C., but thinking he would expect a few words of condolence, I will simply say, that he has treated my subject in a gentlemanly manner, but he has failed to touch the arguments in my article For this we cannot blame him, as it is beyond the power of prohibition to destroy that from which "not a jot nor a tittle shall ever pass away till all shall be fulfilled." Mr. W. C. had better study his Bible and not be found fighting God's word. You had better harness yourself before you start on the next trip. Yours, &c.,

A FARMER.

[With the publication of the above, this controversy must cease. The election is over, and further discussion is useless at this time. Besides this, it has fallen into personalities, and we have no more space to spare. Mr. Low has attacked "A Farmer", and the latter now has replied, and there it ends.] —EDS.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, June 17, 1889.

Mr. Harrison is falling from grace in an extraordinary rapid manner. He spent yesterday on a Sunday excursion aboard of Wanamaker's yacht, the "Restless", in company with Blaine and Windom, and last week he appointed the notorious Robert Smalls, the negro ex-Congressman from South Carolina, to be Collector of Customs at Beaufort, South Carolina. Two very disreputable things to happen in one week.

Mat Quay and Postmaster General Wanamaker have arrived at an agreement about the Philadelphia federal offices and the appointments are expected daily. The basis of the compromise is understood to be that Mr. Field, to whom Wanamaker tendered the postmastership when he first entered the Cabinet, shall have that position and that Quay be allowed to name the Surveyor of the port and the Collector of Customs.

The Samoan commission which has been sitting at Berlin has reached an agreement and adjourned. Nothing is known with any certainty as to what has been done. Blaine says he is entirely satisfied, but of course he would say that, and besides, his being satisfied does not signify that the country will be in the same condition when it knows what has been done.

Corporal Tanner is inclined to be personally thrifty with all of his recklessness in wasting the people's money. He has just appointed his daughter, a girl just out of school, to be his confidential clerk, at a salary of $1800 a year. Quite a snug salary to step into right out of school. Miss Tanner's father is a very prudent man. He proposes to "make hay while the sun shines", for he knows there are breakers and storms ahead.

The Civil Service Commission is proving to be a thorn in the side of the Administration, notwithstanding its two republican members. It seems to be starting out with the determination to have the law enforced impartially. Before leaving for the West the Commissioner called Harrison's attention to the fact under the law all appointments made in the Census Bureau should be taken from its list of eligibles. This question was brought up just before Messrs. Thompson and Roosevelt were appointed members of the Commission, and the republicans indulged in the hope that it had been finally shelved, but the Commissioners intended to compel Mr. Harrison to say yes or no as to these Census Bureau appointments. It is believed that he will decide against the Civil Service Commission.

The U. S. S. Kearsage has been ordered to Hayti, but it seems impossible to learn the why or wherefore except, that it is the result of a conference between Secretaries Blaine and Tracy held over a cablegram from Commander Kellogg who was recently ordered to make an investigation and report thereon. Many people argue that it must be something very serious that sends a vessel to Hayti at this, the sickly season of the year.

The election of Mr. Calvin S. Brice to be Chairman of the National Democratic Committee is very well received here. By his conduct of the last campaign he fairly won the honor, and it is not begrudged him by those who if personal preference alone, had been consulted, would rather have seen Senator Gorman at the helm.

Mr. Harrison was greatly outdone when it was learned that 'Billy' Chandler would again represent New Hampshire in the United States Senate. And small wonder, for it was a very sharp slap in the face for President Harrison, as it was an open secret that the administration was supporting Dr. Gallinger, Chandler's principal opponent. Score one more vote for the anti-administration republican Senators whenever the fight begins.

The Minnesota Senators—Washburn and Davis are engaged in open war over the federal appointments in that State. Washburn is thought to have a little the best of it so far.

Ex-Representative Hoar, of Michigan, the funny man, wanted to be Consul at Montreal, but he has been "turned down" very abruptly. He says, that President Harrison promised him another consulship.

Land Commissioner Stockslager, whose resignation takes place on the 30th inst. took leave of the employes of his office to-day. They were sorry to see him go as he has made a very popular official.

Somebody asked Sam Randall who would be the next Democratic nominee for the Presidency, and his answer should be taken to heart by those impatient gentlemen that are trying to precipitate the next campaign. He said: "Two years from now will be early enough to begin considering that question, to say nothing of intelligently answering it."

The opinion is gaining ground here that Harrison fears to call an extra session of Congress. The Republican majority is so slim that he prefers waiting for the hoped for reenforcements from the new States.

QUICK TIME AND IMPROVED TRAIN SERVICE.

TO ATLANTIC CITY VIA PENNSYLVANIA R. R.

The outlook for the summer season at Atlantic City was never so promising as it is at present, and the prosperous City by the Sea was never in so good a condition for entertaining and amusing its summer guests. Entertaining in the sense of affording food and shelter is all that is required of the Atlantic City people, Nature furnishes the rest, and she lays sea and sand, sky and wind under tribute to aid in accomplishing her purpose. The great Seaside City of summer pleasure, resourceful as it is in all that is attractive and beneficial on sea and land, could never attain to its high standard of popularity if Nature's ally, the railroad, did not lend its efficient aid in rendering access so easy that the average traveler counts the trip as nothing.

The facilities afforded by the Pennsylvania Railroad's seashore branches will be greatly improved for the coming season. They have always been maintained on a scale of liberality unapproached by those enjoyed by any other watering-place, but a progressive spirit will, this summer, be manifested in many and striking improvements. The summer schedule will go into effect on June 29th, and it will present a service of trains superior in number, speed, and equipment to that of any previous year. The roadway of both the West Jersey and Camden and Atlantic roads have been reballasted and relaid in many portions in anticipation of an improved accelerated, and increased service, so that the new schedule will find both of the Pennsylvania's Atlantic City lines in prime physical condition. A larger number of express trains is promised, and the very quick time of transit heretofore made between the Delaware and the ocean will be materially reduced.

An innovation, which hard-working business men will appreciate and the residents of suburban towns and neighboring cities will find most convenient, is a late evening train from Philadelphia. It is proposed that this train shall leave Philadelphia about 6:30 P. M., after all the afternoon connections are in and all business is over, and arrive in Atlantic City for late supper. It will undoubtedly prove a popular movement, and will oftentimes save much hurry and annoyance. Another new feature will be a late train up, leaving Atlantic City at 10.30 P. M. for Philadelphia, enabling visitors to spend the evening with friends and return the same night. Other fast trains will run at convenient hours of the day in both directions, so that every one may find a leaving and arriving hour to his taste.

Two new trains of considerable importance have been added to the schedule within the past week—one an early morning train, designed to deliver the newspapers in Atlantic City before breakfast, and the other an early train up for the accommodation of those who would be in Philadelphia before nine o'clock.

The equipment of the summer trains will be greatly improved by the use of new coaches and by the substitution of new Altoona-built Parlor Cars such as are run between New York and Washington, for the old Woodruff Parlor Cars that the march of progress has left behind.

With these superior facilities, and the advantages offered by a centrally located station easily accessible from all portions of the city, and in direct connections with Broad Street Station, travel to Atlantic City by the Pennsylvania Railroad holds out to its patrons the strongest inducements of promptness, readiness, and comfort.

The latest estimates of the loss of life at Johnstown places it at 3,000. The raft at the stone bridge is being burned up, the work being assisted by pouring hundreds of barrels of coal-oil over the wreck. The place is now in charge of General Hastings, and the state authorities are clearing out the river. The town will be reconstructed and rebuilt.

The Reading rail-road bridge at Milton was crossed by a train on Sunday last for the first time since the flood. It is of wooden trestle work. An iron bridge will be built at once.

History of the Johnstown Flood.

Messrs. J. W. Keeler & Co., Phila., (successors to Hubbard Bros) have in press for early issue a complete and accurate History of the Johnstown Flood, including all the other cities and towns that have suffered likewise. It will be well illustrated. Will be sold through agents, or mailed direct on receipt of $1.50. The demand will undoubtedly be immense.

The thrilling experiences, pathetic incidents, deeds of heroism, unparalled suffering, devastation and death, and the sympathy shown in the contributions of millions for their relief, form a History of the most intense interest to all, and a history every one will want to preserve in book form. It certainly offers a great opportunity for agents—a host of whom will be needed to supply the demand for this work.

Take Hood's Sarsaparilla 100 Doses One Dollar

The Chief Reason for the great success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is found in the article itself. It is merit that wins, and the fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla actually accomplishes what is claimed for it, is what has given to this medicine a popularity and sale greater than that of any other sarsaparilla or blood purifier before the public.

Merit Wins

Hood's Sarsaparilla cures Scrofula, Salt Rheum and all Humors, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Biliousness, overcomes That Tired Feeling, creates an Appetite, strengthens the Nerves, builds up the Whole System.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

There seems to be no falling off in our Well Paper sales. Though the season is fast coming to a close. Why is this so? Because the goods we send out are as good in quality as can be bought anywhere at the prices we offer them. Three things serve us, viz: Quality, quantity and price. The paper we sell we guarantee full length and full weight. These are two points to be careful of in this stage of the business. The Philologian Literary Society will hold a festival in Music Hall this week Friday and Saturday evenings. Many new features will be presented, among these being the "Gypsy Queen" and the "Art Gallery." Good music will be furnished both evenings. Don't fail to go or you will miss a good thing.

At the convention of the Episcopal church held at Reading last week, Rev. W. C. Leverett was elected a clerical deputy to the General Convention which meets in New York next fall. He was also re-elected a member of the Standing Committee of the Diocese. Col. J. G. Freeze was re-elected Chancellor of the Diocese. The next convention will be held in Christ Church, Towanda, in June 1890.

While on a recent visit to Tunkhannock, we took the opportunity to call at the office of the Wyoming Democrat, one of our oldest and most valued exchanges. Mr. Alvin Day is the proprietor, and the paper under his efficient management, is one of the most profitable in Northern Pennsylvania. The office is well equipped with machinery and type. We wish the Democrat continued success.

James McGee & Co., have finally determined to remove their carpet factory from Philadelphia to Bloomsburg. A site has been selected on the south side of the B. & S., railroad fronting on Fifth street, and the work on the buildings will begin very soon. This establishment will employ 200 hands or more. It is to be ready to go into operation by October next.

The contract for the erection of the Presbyterian Church has been let to Mathias Geist, of Pottstown. The building is to be of Hummelstown brown stone, and the stone work has been sublet to McCullough & Roney of Philadelphia. The roof is to be on by January 1. and the structure is to be ready for occupancy by July 1, 1890. The entire cost of the church and furniture will be about $35,000.

Mr. Wm. Hart visited his family Sunday last. He is now operating one of the largest tracts of ore land in this state. The land is located in Centre county, near Bellefonte, and is owned by Ex Governor Curtin and others. Mr. Hart has a lease for ten years, and says that the mines are producing even more than he anticipated. His family will join him before the first of July.

Williamson H. Jacoby is at present employed in this office, and has been here for several weeks. It is hoped that his valuable services may be retained for some time to come. He is a thoroughly practical printer, and had many years experience as editor of the bright and spicy Star of the North, which many of our older readers will remember well. The paper was consolidated with the COLUMBIAN in 1866.

A note of $75.00 in favor of Benton Hall Association, No. 746, I. O. O. F., dated May 2d, 1885, signed by William Patterson and I. K. K. Laubach, has been mislaid or lost. The makers and all other persons are hereby notified that said note should be paid to no one but the Treasurer of the Hall Committee.

E. S. FRITZ, President,
A. R. FRITZ, Secretary,
LAFAYETTE KEELER, Treas.

Benton, June 12, 1889.

THE COLUMBIAN proposes to keep right up with the procession. Our job patronage has increased to such an extent that we have long felt the need of additional facilities, although possessing the best in the county. We are daily expecting a large stereotyping machine, and on Friday last an order was given to the Campbell Press Company of New York, for a $1500 cylinder press for book and job work alone, which is expected in a few days. With these valuable additions we shall be better prepared than ever to do the best, the quickest, and the cheapest printing in this section of the state.

Correspondence is invited from every township in the county upon any topic of public interest. We want all the news, but it is impossible to give it unless we get it. Ministers are especially requested to send in articles of marriages and deaths, and reports of all matters in which their churches are interested. Please call your pastor's attention to this, and tell him the COLUMBIAN will be sent free to him for one year, if he will comply with these conditions. Send in the news, and it will be put in proper shape for publication. It will be waste time, however, for anyone to send items in which there is some hidden personal allusion. News is wanted, but not gossip.

Miss Hattie Wayne died suddenly at the residence of her parents on South Main street, Bloomsburg, last Saturday evening at about five o'clock, aged sixteen years and eight months. About three months ago she contracted a severe cold, which developed into heart disease and dropsy. She seemed apparently to be improving, but yet her strength was gradually leaving her. Saturday last she was suddenly taken with a feeling of exhaustion, and called for help, wishing to be fanned. Every effort was made to revive her but without avail. She was long a member of the Lutheran Sunday School, and always in her place while in health. Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon, conducted by Rev. E. A. Sharretts and Rev. S. W. Sears.

A special session of the court will begin next Monday, the 24th, for the trial of three ejectment suits involving the title to three large tracts of coal lands in Conyngham township. In all of them the city of Philadelphia, trustee under the Will of Stephen Girard, is the plaintiff, and the defendant in one of them is the Johnston Beasly Coal Company, and in the other two the tenants in possession are the nominal defendants, while E. P. Wilbur, trustee, is the real defendant. The counsel concerned in the cases are Geo. F. Baer, of Reading, S. P. Wolverton, of Sunbury, Franklin B. Gowen, F. Carroll Brewster, of Philadelphia, John Ryan and S. H. Kaercher, of Pottsville, Judge Elwell, C. R. Buckalew, J. G. Freeze, L. E. Waller and Geo. E. Elwell. If all the cases are tried it will take some time.

So far as telegraphic communication from Bloomsburg to the outer world is concerned, there seems to be none of it. During the high water, and the damage to the B. & S. R. R., no dispatches were sent by anybody from Bloomsburg. When a man hanged himself here last Sunday, the dispatch announcing it was sent from Wilkes-Barre. No one has taken the trouble to report any of our industrial movements.

Nothing of public interest here seems to be sent to the daily papers. Whether this is the fault of the dailies, which have not made arrangements to get news from here, or a lack of enterprise in our people in not letting the world know what we are doing here, we do not pretend to say, but we do say that Bloomsburg is a town of nearly 6000 inhabitants, and that it is rapidly forging to the front, and is destined to be a great manufacturing centre, and the evidences of our progress as they occur ought to be made known in the daily city papers, as the doings of other less important towns are made known.

SUICIDE BY HANGING!

A HUNGARIAN FOUND DEAD.

On Sunday morning at 11 o'clock M. S. Williams rushed down Iron street in search of Guy Jacoby, Esq., and having found him, announced that the body of a man was hanging to a tree in the woods on the side hill back of Rosemont Cemetery. The report spread rapidly, and a large crowd started for the spot. The body was still hanging just as it was first discovered by two young men, William Scott and Jerry Geese, who were taking a stroll in the woods. It was in a spot entirely concealed from the road below, and the suicide evidently had sought a place where his intention to destroy himself would not be frustrated.

The body was suspended by a strap around the neck, the other end being tied to a limb of a tree. The feet were only a few inches from the ground, but the slope was so great that he could not have gained a foothold after swinging himself off, even if he had so desired. The man evidently put the noose around his neck, and then holding himself up by one hand, had tied a double knot in the strap and then let himself down. He could not have stood on the ground above the tree and tied the knot, as the strap was too short. The left leg of his pants was torn at the knee, caused no doubt by his struggles.

Esquire Jacoby impaneled a jury consisting of E. Skiles McKillip, M. S. Williams, H. E Smith, Jas. M. Walter, G. T. Baker, and Geo. Sterling, and upon being sworn, they viewed the body and it was then taken down. No one present could identify the man. He was about five feet five inches in height, and weighed about 140 pounds. His apparent age was from 35 to 40 years, and he wore a faded dark suit, sack coat, and a cap. The face was covered with a light beard. Nothing was found in his pockets that served to identify him. He had nothing but a clean colored shirt of coarse material, a bunch of strong shoe strings, and two handkerchiefs.

When found, the body had the cap on the head, and was perfectly rigid. The strap had cut deep into the neck, and there were evidences of mortification about the mouth, in the hands which were swollen, and the blood had settled about the ankles.

The coroner's inquest was adjourned until Monday morning at 9 o'clock, and Undertaker Baker took charge of the body and removed it to his shop.

THE INQUEST.

An inquest was held on Monday morning at the office of Esquire Jacoby, at nine o'clock. Jerry Geese and William Scott were called as witnesses and testified that on Sunday morning they were walking along the top of the hill, back of the Cemetery, and discovered the body hanging to a tree. They at once came down and gave the alarm, M. S. Williams being the first person they met. Mr. Williams went up and looked at the man and then started for the coroner.

Bruno Shankosky testified that the man was the same one who was released from jail on Saturday morning, and that his name was Frank Zuranda, a Hungarian. The witness had talked with him on Saturday, and seen him in jail the day before, having been called upon as an interpreter. The man had told Bruno that his wife had left him, and that he was hunting for her. He had been up at Mifflinville acting strangely, and was committed to jail by Samuel Snyder, Esq., on Monday. Bruno thought he was insane.

The jury rendered a verdict that the man came to his death at his own hands, by hanging, while temporarily insane.

Zuranda was seen on Saturday evening by W. W. Barrett, keeper at the jail, who put him on a freight train so that he might go to Shickshinny and join some of his own countrymen. Mr. Barrett afterward saw him and asked him why he did not go, and he replied, "No money."

The body was buried in the Potter's field at the farm of Bloom Poor District.

A Deaf Man Killed on the B. & S.

Last Friday morning the 14th inst. about 7:30 o'clock, William W. Kisner, of Orangeville, was run over and killed by the gravel train on the Bloomsburg & Sullivan Railroad just below the iron bridge. He was walking on the track, and the train was running at the rate of about twelve miles an hour. When the man was first seen the engineer, W. C. Fortune, blew the whistle three times for "down brakes." Kisner being very deaf, paid no attention to it. Joseph Casey, brakeman, supposed the man would step off the track before the train reached him, but as they drew closer and closer, and he did not look around nor step aside, Casey threw a stone at him, to attract his attention. By this time the train was upon him, and Casey reached forward and attempted to throw him off the track, but Mr. Kisner's feet caught in the rail and drew him back under the cars. Eleven cars passed over the body. The head and left arm were cut off, the left leg broken, and the face and body badly lacerated.

Guy Jacoby, Esq., acting as coroner, held an inquest on Friday, the following persons serving as jurymen: G. S. Fleckenstine, E. L. Snyder, Samuel Hidlay, Geo. M. S. Herring, C. M. Cook, and Francis Herring.

W. C. Fortune and Joseph Casey testified to the above facts, and they were corroborated by Mrs. Rebecca J. Larney and Frank Brumstetler who saw the accident. The jury entirely exonerated the railroad men.

William W. Kisner was born in Orangeville, and was a son of Jonas Kisner, deceased. He was a blacksmith by trade, and followed that business many years in Orangeville with his father. Then he removed to Hazleton and pursued the same occupation, and from there he went to Goshen, Indiana, where he formed a partnership in the wagon making business, he doing the iron work. He accumulated money and invested it in real estate, there, and also in Chicago, thereby securing a competency for himself, and he then sold out his interest at Goshen, and returned to Orangeville four or five years ago, since which he has led a retired life. He was making arrangements to go west to dispose of his real estate, when he was overtaken by a violent death.

The funeral took place on Saturday evening at 5 o'clock.

Mr. Kisner was never married.

Vote of Columbia County.

Below we give the vote of Columbia county as cast Tuesday, June 18, for the Prohibitory Amendment and the Suffrage Amendment. The Suffrage Amendment had received so little attention that the vote is not as large as that of the other. If it had been better understood it is probable the majority against it would have been still larger.

Hanging Men by Contract.

A COMPANY ORGANIZED TO EXECUTE CONDEMNED CRIMINALS.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 16.—Capital is seeking new channels for investment. Articles of incorporation were filed with the Secretary of State, creating the great American Execution Company of the United States. It is organized under the general corporation act of Illinois and announces its paid-up capital at $25,000. Its declared purpose is "to execute persons who are sentenced to death." The incorporators are Stephen Lawson, M. E. Clear and Jacob A. E. Iffert, all of Chicago. Lawson and Clear were in partnership in that city in the retail coal business until a year ago and the firm became M. E. Clear & Company. Mr. Lawson is not in any business at present, but thinks there is an honest dollar to be made in the hanging business. The Company intends to establish agencies in each State capital, and will conduct a general retail and wholesale execution business at fixed schedule rates. It will employ only the most expert hangmen, at a fixed yearly salary, and will make contracts with the sheriffs of counties in States where condemned murderers are executed by the county officials. In States like Ohio (and, in the future, New York), where the executions must occur only at legally prescribed places, the arrangements will be made with the wardens of the penintentiaries

The men who filed articles of incorporation with the State Department appear to be acting in good faith, though it is possible they are seeking notriety rather than incomes from stretching necks. I talked with the Chief of Police about the matter after receipt of your telegram, and he declared most emphatically that he didn't believe the Cook County officials would employ any such executioners. Each sheriff, when his successor was selected confided as a precious secret the name and identity of the professional hangman. It would never do to employ Tom, Dick or Harry to swing convicted crimiaals into eternity.

M. E. Clear was found at his office, on the river front. He is a neat, bustling man of about medium size, and spoke with perfect frankness on the subject. "Yes, it is true," he said, "that a few of us have organized a company to conduct private executions throughout the country. We have put up our money, and are already in correspondence with many sheriffs and expert hangmen throughout the country."

DIVIDE NO DIVIDENDS ON DEATH.

"What do you expect your dividends to be?"

"I am glad you asked that question," was the quick rejoiner, "because it shows that our motives are completely misunderstood. We do not intend to earn any dividends. If we can simply maintain the integrity of our capital we shall be satisfied, and shall gladly charge off to the loss account the interest thereon. No, our motives are purely philanthropic. 'To do good is our religion.' You see, it's like this: We are all believers in capital punishment. We read our Bibles carefully and believe that whoso shedeth man's blood by man shall his blood be shed—or words to that effect. To be hanged, sir, by our Company's expert executioners will be a luxury."

NO BUNGLING HERE.

"What gave you the idea of this novel enterprise?"

"The recent bungling executions in Missouri," was the reply. "You must have read—of course you did—the horrible accounts of the bungling strangulations of the Bald-Knobbers. That was shocking enough to suggest some practical reform, don't you think so? Some of the members of the Company hope to secure the co operation of the large and organized undertaking interest throughout the country. Then we shall be able to make a rate for a neat hanging, a rather more imposing execution or a complete carrying out of the law and funeral combined.

SCAFFOLDS PACKED FOR SHIPMENT.

"The rates will depend much upon the distance necessary to send the executioners and the condition of the scaffold at the jail where the law is carried out. Of course we shall have a dozen or more substantially built scaffolds at central points, properly packed for prompt shipment to the desired localities where nothing of the kind is to be had. But we shall encourage hanging by the improved method in vogue at New York, where a heavy iron weight is used to jerk apart the vertebræ of the condemned. This apparatus can be rigged up anywhere, and the four-hundred-pound weight only will have to be shipped. The ropes, pulleys, staples and pinioning straps can be carried in a small gripsack. We shall know our engagements, of course, and shall keep them. It will be a business matter with us altogether—no sentiment in dealing with crime."

"Suppose you get an application from a man for your gallows and cords who wants to commit suicide, will it be in the line of business' to furnish him what he wants?"

"We shall be suspicious of all applications from anybody but sheriffs, and of course we shall have all their names. No, we shall not assist suicides out of this world."

The Phila. Inquirer publishes the following, which it would be well enough for the farmers of this country to make a note of: "The farmers in the vicinity of Philidelphia are complaining of a new form of lighting-rod swindle. The man induces the farmer to let him put rods on his house, agreeing, on account of the prominence of the farmer or the beauty of his farmhouse to make him a present of nearly the entire outfit. The contract is signed, rods put up without insulators and the farmer invited to go on the roof to test the conducting qualities. A battery is applied from the ground and the countryman is thoroughly satisfied with the shock he receives. Then comes the request to settle. The rods are all right as to price, but points to attract the lightning cost $10 each and the farmer, who has not read the contract through before, learns that he is bound to pay from $80 to 120 for a worthless set of lightning rods."

Speer's N. J. Wine.

It is said to be the most reliable wine in the market. Physicians prescribe it as superior in cases of debility, languor, and prostration of strength. It is also an excellent restorative for indigestion. Numerous letters have been written by lawyers, lecturers and distinguished divines speaking in high terms of approbation of the healthy blood making and invigorating properties of Speers wine especially the Port.—Republican.

It is sold by druggists.

The Fishing Season.

The fishing season is now fairly opened. It is lawful during June to catch with rod, hook and line any of the fresh water fish usually found in Pensylvania waters, expecting only rock bass and wall-eyed pike in the Delaware river, which are protected by an act of the late Legislature for of two years. The reason for this exception is that the Delaware has just been stocked with these fish, which are native to its waters, and the Fish Commission desires that they shall be unmolestd until they have attained a reasonable size. The rock bass mentioned in this act is not the striped bass or rock fish, but a variety taken from the great lakes and more nearly resembling the black bass in size and general appearance.

It is scarcely necessary at this time to urge the through enforcement of all laws for the protection of game fish in the fresh waters of the State. For the lack of well enforced fishing laws the lakes and streams of the Commonwealth, which once swarmed with the best of fish have been nearly depopulated. Since the creation of the State Fish Commission and the enactment of existing laws the wholesale destruction of the fish has been arrested and some progress made in restocking waters. If the laws are faithfully enforced there will be fishing for all who love the sport in the near future, and for this reason it should become everybody's business to aid Fish Commissioners and Fish Wardens in protecting the fish from all illegal methods of destruction.

In connection with this subject it may not be amiss to suggest to the Fish commission the propriety of paying special attention to the protection and propagation of the native fresh water varieties of the State. It is all well enough to transplant the different varieties of the game bass to afford increased sport to the professional anglers and to cultivate carp for private fish ponds. But the native fish, such as the wall-eye pike, striped bass, pickerel, yellow perch and even the sunfish and catfish, some of which are described in anther column that have afforded sport and healthful food to the inhabitants of the State for two centuries, are all worthy of protection and propagation. They are the fish of the common people, those who can-not afford expensive journeys the seashore or great lakes to do their fishing. Every stream, lake reservoir and mill-pond in the State should be full of these fish, so that when the farmer and the farmer's boy and the hired man want a little rest from their arduous labors with some sport thrown in they can find it near home.

The boys of a half century ago got more genuine pleasure out of fishing for sunfish with a piece twine for a line and a bent pin for a hook than the most skilful adult anglr of to-day, who catches bass or muscalonge with the finest modern tackle. Why shouldn't the boys of the present and future generations be given the same chance? And the old-time farmer or mechanic, who utilized a cloudy day by catching a good mess of catfish or perch from the nearest waters, secured a much needed relaxation from hard work besides furnishing themselves and families with a healthful variation in their ordinary diet. Shouldn't the farmer and mechanics and their boys be thought of still in the efforts that are now being made to improve the fishing waters of the State? These suggestions are made in no spirit of hostility to the prtection and propagation of the fish which are the delight of the professional angler, the more bass and trout and muscalonge we can get into our waters the better. But while this is done the common fish and the common fisherman should not be overlooked. The latter furnish most of the money in the form of taxes appropriated to the propagation and protection of fish and certainly should be allowed to share in the benefit derived from its expenditure.—Times.

Water Witching.

There exists amoung the ignorant of all communities many strong beliefs, deeply rooted and powerful in the guidance of their daily actions, influential factors in their lives, but tossed contemptuously aside by the learned as "superstitions," which a writer in the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette believes to be well worthy of scientific investigation as having seeds of truth within which, by culture, may be developed into usefulness.

The prevalent idea, for instance; of the action of the moon upon vegtation than has been accorded it by science, as it is undendable that those who follow the "signes" in their planting and sowing and pruning are the most successful ot agriculturists, horticulturists and florists. Even the effect popularly attributed to that satellite upon inanimate substances is not an entirely friolous attribute.

Another ancient and widely-spread "supervision" is that of "water witching," so called because it was formerly believed that the twigs of the witch hazel (Hamamelis Virginica) were necessary for the production of the phenomena attending the broces. In southern Ohio, however, the peach stick is the favorite implement, but, in my experience any variety of wood will answer the purpose. I have used oak, haw, beech, birch or any other wood that came to hand with equal effect, and a piece of old wooden hoop has served the purpose just as well.

Flood Notes.

Northampton county's flood fund will aggregate $25,000.

Swollen streams have caused considerable damage in the region of Sherbrooke Quebec.

Great destitution prvails among the boatman along the Potomac on account of the recent floods.

Most of the newspaper correspondents at Johnstown sleep in barns and brick kilns without cots or blankets.

Some of the people at Morrellvile are said to have secured provisions enough to last for six months and clothing for five years.

Two bodies, supposed victims of the Johnstown flood, floated by Anderson's Ferry, six miles below Cincinnati.

The Citizens Relief Committee of Philadelphia has sent $2,600 to the authorities at Jersey Shore for the immediate relief of the sufferers there, and $1,000 to Aaronsburg, Centre County, for the same purpose.

The Governor has received to date about $468,000 for the flood sufferers.

Twenty Million Dogs.

It is the everlasting regret of man that human friendship passes away. Out of the difficulty of securing a companion who will forgive and forget all faults, and also bear gifts, man turns to the dog, thus proving that the gifts need not be gifts of money. The dog will look his master in the face, will flatter that despot with a silence which can only delight the eloquent—and will never forsake the human friend who has honored the poor servant and adulator above all other dogs. On this account it is found that one out of every three inhabitants owns a dog. Prodigious testimony of the hunger of humanity for service and flattery!

There lurks behind this not unpleasant picture the horrid presence of hydrophobia. The tongue licking its master's hand also laps fangs that carry the deadliest of poisons. The noble favorite of the householder goes out on the street and bites small boys. The father of a bitten boy presents himself before the owner of the dog as a person grievously wronged, and society must, through its courts, debate and adjust a matter that has two sides to a couple of litigants.

The rich man will naturally hold his pet dog's life at a high price. The poor father will hold the bite inflicted on his son to be a matter of more than damages. The dog must be killed. The law says so, and the law is just. The owner beholds the killing of the dog with feelings of rebellion against the State, and forthwith believes he is the victim of remorseless and diabolical persecution. Should a case of hydrophobia supervene, we have a scene too vivid for description, and all who behold it become converts to the theory that dogs as well as tigers should be totally exterminated.

That there should be twice as many dogs as horses, twice as many dogs as cows, and half as many dogs as sheep or swine, will convince any student that the question of hydrophobia is but just entered upon. Man loves his dog, and forgives his one besetting sin. Albeit, does not the dog promise his master a certain degree of hostility toward other men?—Chicago Herald.

Preserved Grape Communion Wine.

The Grape crop of A. Speer's Vineyards in New Jersey, promises this year to be one third more than any other previous year. His Vineyards in New Jersey and the products from the grapes he purchases, have enabled him to keep a stock four years ahead. His Unfermented Grape Juice has become a popular evening wine among the best families in New York, and for communion purposes.

OH! MY! HEAD!!

Suffering of a New Jersey Senator.—Dyspepsia, Sick Headache.—Terrible Things.

When the stomach is torpid it soon becomes clogged with half digested matters, the blood is vitiated and foul; the other organs fail to act normally, and induces a train of symptoms, such as dyspepsia, sick headache, dizziness, drowsiness, palpitation of the heart, pain in the back, loss of appetite.

"These are few things that I believe in with all my heart and it affords me pleasure to tell of one of them." The speaker was ex-Senator Albert Merritt, head of the large fruit farm, 88 Park Place, N. Y., and the scene his office. "I was sick and fancied I had become fated to endure the (...

and a dangerous affection of the kidneys. A relative said to me: "Why don't you try Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y.? I did so. I grew steadily better. I could eat, digest, sleep and work with a clearer head, and the yellow color of my skin had given place to the tones that announce pure blood and every organ of the body in healthy action. Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is entitled to the credit of saving my life. If any one has a doubt about the truth of my statements let him write to me. I can give you the names and addresses of fifty persons who affirm, as I do, that 'Favorite Remedy' has been a boon and a blessing in time of need." Mr. A. DeRevere, Terrytown, N. Y., says: "For a long time I was troubled with severe attacks of dizziness and due to impure blood and a disordered state of the system. I was advised to try Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y. I did so and have been completely cured. It's the best thing I ever heard of for any disorder of that nature, and I have recommended it to many with like success." Mr. Daniel Fitts, Taunton, Mass., says: "I recommend Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy for dyspepsia and sick headache. I suffered for many years with those complaints, and was cured by Dr. Kennedy's

The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.:

Gentlemen—Seven years ago I contracted an exceedingly bad case of blood poison. I tried a physician, the best at command, but secured no benefit. My throat began to get sore, and my body covered with sores and ulcers. Going from bad to worse, I felt that my grave must be reached in the near future. I gave up the doctors' treatment, and with a despairing hope I commenced taking your medicine. I began to improve from the first bottle, and in a short time the ulcers healed, and my skin cleared off and was entirely well.

One year ago a case of catarrh developed in my system. The physician did his best, but could not cure me; but two bottles of Swift's Specific gave me permanent relief.

Children's Day at Raven Creek.

It was thought last year the exercises had reached the height of interest, but Sunday evening's programme eclipsed them.

From the opening Voluntary to the doxology all was replete with extraordinary interest. The children never looked so pretty, nor spoke nor sang so well, and the decorations were beautiful. A floral arch ten feet high reached across the pulpit with a cross of white in the center of the arch, while wreaths, bouquets and baskets of flowers in various designs contributed to make the scene one of entrancing beauty. The flags that had been left in the church since Memorial Day added much to the decoration. At eight o'clock the church was filled to its utmost capacity, while many enjoyed the exercises standing outside. The people were called to order by the worthy Superintendent F. I. Shultz. The first in order was Voluntary music followed by Roll-Call which each scholar responded to by rising, standing they repeated the Lord's Prayer in concert.

Ray Smith delivered the opening address, after which the school sang "Children's Day," followed by prayer by the Pastor.

Then came Scripture reading in concert and singing appropriate for the occasion.

The Pastor, Rev. Mathers, gave an excellent address which gave many clear strong proofs to Christianity, that would be grasped and used by all Christian workers.

The school then sang "It is good to be here."

Then a number of very beautiful recitations were given by the children, first Willie Hess. Harvey Belles repeated a temperance poem, entitled, "Sign ng the Farm Away," followed by Jennie Ruckle "Father May I Pray."

Four small girls with flowers in their hands recited a concert recitation, "At His dear feet," while they were standing the school sang "Jesus gentle Saviour." G. E. Albertson gave recitation "As one of the burden bearers." Jennie Belles recitation "The good Shepherd." Ernest Shaltz, recitation, "I am going to be a wise man." Singing by the infant class, "I am Jesus' little friend," was one of the most interesting features of the evening when nearly thirty small boys and girls of the school came and sang so well. They were praised and applauded by all Recitations were as following: "Perseverence" Louisie Sutliff, Elmer Shultz "What can little hands do?" Concert recitation by four small girls, "Praise for Mercy." Eva Belles, recitation. Singing by Primary Class, "Happy, Happy Sunday." Recitation by Virdie Smith "Daily Work." R. Norrie Lutz, Recitation, "Nothing or Something." Carrie Smith gave a recitation entitled "The King's Daughter," which was followed by singing "I'm a child of the King." Miss Allie Ruckle spoke on "The Benevolence of God" followed by "An evening Prayer" by Pearl Albertson. Miss Anna Blain, told what we are doing for the Missionaries, after which the basket was passed and received a very liberal collection. "All hail the power of Jesus Name" was sung. The Pastor made a few remarks, then the exercises closed by singing the "Doxology" and the Benediction by the Pastor, Rev. Mathers. Taken all in all the exercises were complete in every detail and nothing occurred to mar the pleasure of the evening.

Bogus Milk.

There is a big milk handling concern in St. Louis which makes a special drive of chemically pure milk. It is a matter for discussion whether nature ever compounded any such brand, but it is morally certain that it never created the cow whose milk would stand three days and three nights behind a hot stove without curdling, as does the chemically pure milk under consideration. And yet the milk looks and tastes more like the natural product of the real live cow than much of the distillery slop stuff one gets from most of the wagons. It would be gratifying news to thousands of householders in St. Louis if the news could truthfully be published that some fellow had succeeded in concocting a brand of wholly artificial milk on which cream would rise, from which butter could be churned, and which would keep the bottle-nursing babies clear of cholera infantum. But experienced householders are distrustful of the cow-and-chemistry brands of alleged pure milk.—St. Louis Star-Sayings.

A NEW HOME TREATMENT.

Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, or that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membrane of the nose and eustachian tubes. Microscopic research, however, has proved this to be a fact and the result is that a simple remedy has been formulated whereby catarrh, catarrhal deafness and hay fever are permanently cured in from one to three simple applications made at home by the patient once in two weeks. N. B.—For catarrhal discharges peculiar to females (whites) this remedy is a specific. A pamphlet explaining this new treatment is sent on receipt of ten cents by A. H. DIXON & SON, 304 West King St., Toronto, Canada.—Scientific American.

Sufferers from catarrhal troubles should read the above carefully.

It Makes You Hungry

"I have used Paine's Celery Compound and it has had a salutary effect. It invigorated the system and I feel like a new man. It improves the appetite and facilitates digestion." J. T. COPELAND, Primus, S. C.

Paine's Celery Compound

is a unique tonic and appetizer. Pleasant to the taste, quick in its action, and without any injurious effect, it gives that rugged health which makes everything taste good. It cures dyspepsia and kindred disorders. Physicians prescribe it. $1.00. Six for $5.00. Druggists.

The Best Spring Medicine.

"In the spring of 1887 I was all run down. I would get up in the morning with so tired a feeling, and was so weak that I could hardly get around. I bought a bottle of Paine's Celery Compound, and before I had taken it a week I felt very much better. I can cheerfully recommend it to all who need a building up and strengthening medicine." Mrs. B. A. DOW, Burlington, Vt.

Spring medicine means more now-a-days than it did ten years ago. The winter of 1888-89 has left the nerves all fagged out. The nerves must be strengthened, the blood purified, liver and bowels regulated. Paine's Celery Compound—the Spring medicine of to-day—does all this, as nothing else can. Prescribed by Physicians, Recommended by Druggists, Endorsed by Ministers, Guaranteed by the Manufacturers to be

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

EPP'S COCOA.

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping
